

Orange, California, Jim Doyle of Applied Photography Wins 1st at International Grand Imaging Awards

Prestigious Award Adds to Photographer's Accolades

Orange, CA – photographer, Jim Doyle, on February 2, 2015 won the prestigious international Grand Imaging Award from Professional Photographers of America (PPA).

Doyle's image, A Room With A View was selected by an international panel as the 1st Place in the "Commercial and Illustrative" category at the Grand Imaging Awards. The event was held Monday, February 2, 2015, at PPA's annual convention, Imaging USA, in Nashville, Tennessee.

"This is the third year in a row that one of my images has been selected to compete in this Grand Imaging Award and my first, 1st Place Award." said Doyle. "It is truly an honor to be part of this amazing competition. There is stiff competition from some of the best photographers in the nation and I am proud to have been honored with this award."

Doyle went up against stiff competition—the best photography as selected by a panel of judges at the International Photographic Competition (IPC) held this past August.

Entries for Team USA were chosen by PPA at the International Photographic Competition (IPC) last August in Atlanta. To be considered for next year's Grand Imaging Awards, photographers must first enter their images into the IPC.
